Death Penalty Can Reduce Crime

The U.S. Supreme Court, in a historic decision, has upheld the constitutionality of the death penalty but the question still is nagging: will it work?

The ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT editorially commented recently, "if past experience is a guide, the resumption of the death penalty could bring about a sizeable reduction in the number of murders and other savage violence in this crime-ravaged country."

But let's add to that this proviso: "If and when the would-be criminal is convinced that if he commits murder, he will suffer the penalty of death."

It has been a great number of years since any killer has been executed for his crime. And although the Supreme Court upheld the death penalty laws in Florida, Georgia and Texas, the Court struck down laws in North Carolina and Louisiana, and the mandatory death penalty statutes in 20 other states are questionable.

Without doubt, the landmark decision is an important turn-about from the Supreme Court's previous permissive decisions, and it reflects the public's growing indignation and concern over the steadily rising crime rates, including the crime of murder.

As Justice Potter Stewart declared in the majority opinion, the fact that many states re-enacted the death penalty after the previous Supreme Court members had invalidated the laws, is a "marked indication of society's endorsement of the death penalty for murder."

We can be grateful that the present Court appears, at long last, to be more concerned with the rights of citizens than the alleged "rights" of criminals.

Nor do we hold with the philosophy of the death penalty being any more cruel and inhumane than the treatment handed the victim of murder.

But the purpose of the death penalty, after all, is not to mete out revenge. The purpose is to prevent further killing of innocent people. And it may be that only after a number of murderers have suffered the supreme penalty, will they get the message: "If you kill, you will die."

Up until now, killings have multiplied because the killers were assured that they could "get away with murder," as indeed they have.

When they get to know, however, that they cannot and will not "get away with it," then the murders will cease.

30 Days Has September . . .

A reader showed it to us.

It was a letter mailed in Lemon Grove to an address in the 7900 block on Broadway.

The postmark, clearly readable is "LEMON GROVE FEBRUARY 30, 1975." The letter itself was dated March 3, 1976.

We checked last year's calendar, just to make certain we hadn't overlooked a February with 30 days in it.

We suppose that the erroneous postmark might be worth a lot of money. Stamps fans have paid thousands of dollars for misprinted postage stamps so it isn't hard to believe that an impossible date would be worth something.

It also proves that high postage rates doesn't eliminate the error factor.

Ronald Reagan Says . . .

I think there is a basic moral law. I don't think there is anything wrong with teaching a small child in kindergarten, if he wants the toy that the other child has, he doesn't bop him on the head to get it. I think you teach him the rights of others.

If you refuse to have any consideration for any moral standards or guidelines, you are in effect saying, "There are none." But this can be done (the teaching of difference between right from wrong) without teaching your particular philosophy, or teaching someone a religious creed.

County Eyes Special Use Permit for Swap Meets

The county Planning Commission has okayed a proposed ordinance which would require new or expanding swap meets to obtain a special use permit.

The seven-member planning commission voted Friday 4 to 1 to recommend the ordinance be passed by the Board of Supervisors. Two commissioners were absent.

Dissenting was Commissioner Alice Marquis who upheld the principle of keeping easy access to places where consumers can purchase low-priced goods.

The measure will go before Supervisors in the form of a public hearing before being enacted into law, a six to eight week process according to county Land Use and Environmental Regulation Dept. staff member Paul Koenig.

The permit is necessary because of the rapid growth of swap meets and a growing number of complaints from residents and businesses in the areas where meets are held, Koenig explained.

"The special use permit allows the county to control certain aspects of the meets," he said.

The new ordinance would make the Planning Commission a major deciding factor in the growth of the swap meet business. Under its provisions, swap meet operators would have to file an application with the Planning Commission which would study the environmental impact of such an operation.

Commissioners would have the power to either deny a permit or place certain conditions on awarding the permit.

The ordinance would have no effect on swap meets already operating unless they intend to expand the business. In the event an owner wants to expand his area of operation, Koenig said, the entire business would go under the purview of the Planning Commission.

County staff recently studied the Spring Valley Swap Meet in La Presa and recommended that the Board of Supervisors not revoke operator Wally Derr's license. Traffic, noise and litter problems were deemed insufficient to exercise the revocation power of Supervisors granted them earlier this year under another new ordinance.

Hospital District Drops Tax 25%

East county homeowners in the Grossmont Hospital District will enjoy a lower tax rate for 1976-77 following board action July 21.

Property tax rate levied by the Grossmont Hospital District for capital expenses was lowered from 20 cents per $100 of assessed valuation to 15 cents, a 25% reduction.

Ron Dahlgren, administrator, pointed out that the new 15-cent rate, combined with reserves which the district has been able to accumulate, will still enable the hospital to continue with its expansion program.

A new six-story wing is scheduled to open this fall, with a physical rehabilitation and mental health center slated for opening next summer.

S.V. Park Council Mulls Expansion Plans

The addition of one-and-a-half acres to the Spring Valley Park is being studied by the S.V. Park and Recreation Advisory Council, it was reported by Herbert R. Ketell, president of the Council.

If additional property is acquired, it will be the site of a community center building in which youth activities, community dances, community functions, club activities, and possibly, health care facilities will be housed, Ketell said.

Funds would come from the $250,000 park grant approved by voters in 1974 of which $149,768 has been allotted. $150,000 additional is available from a HUD (Housing and Urban Development) grant.

Ketell emphasized that use of the money ($299,768) would not be added to the tax bill.

He said the Advisory Council is split between various programs — one of which would be to use available funds for the purchase of more park land. Another group prefers the construction of a center of "adequate" size on park property now owned by the P&R District. A third splinter would have the available funds used for the purchase of less land and for construction of a smaller center.

A plan has already been submitted to the S.D. County P&R Dept. by which an "adequate" center would be built.

Three Dognaps In Spring Valley

Dognappers struck three times in the east county on one day last week . . . twice at one location.

At the Puppy World, 651 Sweetwater rd., Spring Valley, someone lifted an AKA registered Chihuahua male from its pen and made off with it unobserved. The pup, worth $70, was taken during a flurry of business according to Suzi Rae Stock, a clerk.

Later in the day, a man, 25-30, asked permission to take a $150 Coon Hound out to his car "to show my wife". He never returned, according to Stock, and another clerk, Deborah D. Blase.

Michael A. Richardson, of 12880 Highway 94, Jamul, told sheriff's deputies that his year-old Great Dane had been stolen.

The dog, a fawn male, was valued at $250.

Bicentennial Burglar

Bicentennial coins with a face value of $50 were taken from the home of Ralph Lee Ek, 2745 Bancroft dr., Spring Valley on August 5, while he was away.

Bottle of Dimes

A Galleano wine bottle full of dimes was taken from the residence of David Lee Lippencott, 11004 Singletree ln., Spring Valley while he was at work August 5. Lippencott estimated the loss to be more than $70.

Teacher Pay Hike Expected

Bus Cuts, Kitchen Renovation, 5% Salary Increase OK'd by School Board

An end to bus service for junior high students, a raise for classified employees and the awarding of bids for a major kitchen renovation project headline recent action taken by the Lemon Grove School Board.

Board members at a recent meeting decided to begin phasing out its bus program this fall with the curtailment of bus service to students living long distances from the Palm and Lemon Grove Jr. High Schools. Elementary students beyond the set walking distance limits and handicapped students will continue to ride the school buses. Students in grades kindergarten through 3rd ride if they live beyond, 3/4 mile from school. The 4th through 6th grade limit is 1 1/4 miles.

The decision affects about 150 junior high students who live between 1 1/2 and 2 miles from school.

5% Raise

The Board announced a 5 per cent salary and benefit increase for its classified staff at last week's meeting. Classified employees include non-teaching personnel — maintenance and janitorial, cooks, office staff, community school directors, administrative personnel, assistant superintendents and the school superintendent.

The raise breaks down to a 4 per cent cost of living increase and a 1 per cent increase to cover rising health insurance costs.

Teacher's Pay

Following a public hearing on the board's proposal to teachers, scheduled for 8 p.m., August 24, the two will enter into collective bargaining negotiations over salary, benefits and working conditions.

While teachers say they are asking for 10 per cent salary increases, Superintendent Robert Sutton says it is much more. "Cost estimates based on their proposed salary schedule alone would amount to an 18 per cent increase in teacher salary expenditures."

Such schedule would wipe out the school district's reserve funds, the superintendent said. Traditionally, teachers and classified employees in the district are granted similar cost of living increase percentages.

Central Kitchen

Also, governing board members approved bid awards totaling $47,200 for a major improvement project for the central kitchen facilities at Lemon Grove Jr. High.

The kitchen prepares meals for all schools in the district and for the Lemon Grove-Spring Valley senior citizens' nutrition project.

Concentration of cooking facilities at one location is a long-range money saving goal of the district. A year and a half ago a new walk-in freezer, refrigerator combination was installed to begin the renovation.

Among the items in the new phase of remodeling is a $7,828 food transportation van and a $7,000 hood and exhaust system which health officials have called for to replace the original.

Other equipment includes ovens, ranges, tables, ventilation equipment, supplies and storage shelving.

A total of $26,688 from the State Non-Food Assistance Program will be used for the project, the remainder coming from a new five cent tax override approved by the board last month. The override tax is expected to generate $35,096, leaving an estimated $25,000 balance which must, by law, be held for further kitchen improvement or to help fund the free and reduced price lunch program for disadvantaged students.

Other Action

Other board action taken at the August 3 meeting included the following:

Moving Burglary

The family of Charles Allen Mattingly, a San Diego police officer, was moving to a new home on the afternoon of August 4.

Back at the residence he was leaving, at 8143 Golden ave., Lemon Grove, was still some of their belongings.

While somewhere between the old home and the new, burglars entered the Lemon Grove home and left with items valued at $440.

Included were various tools and a tapestry.

Trustees okayed district participation in the outdoor education encampment program. Said senior Trustee H. Warren Buckner, "It's a fancy name for 6th grade camp."

Nonetheless, the board voted unanimously to let sixth graders participate in the camp which requires $21.50 from pupils. The district pays $38 per pupil. Turnout, say one school official, is around 98 per cent.

Trustees gave a nod to a plan to discontinue its educable mentally retarded classes for junior high students in view of declining enrollment. The four to six students expected to be eligible for the program in the Fall will be bused to a similar service in the Santee School District, it was determined.

Superintendent Robert Sutton ton said the move would provide substantial savings despite transportation costs.

Surplus For Bid

A surplus equipment and materials sale was approved. Among items open for bid are excess equipment from the soon to be remodeled Lemon Grove Jr. High kitchen, and salvage from the recently demolished Lemon Grove School, a condemned building which has been used for storage since the early 1950's.

Fire extinguishers, heaters, wood flooring, doors, record players, tape recorders and movie projectors are other items.

Also on the list is a 1955 GMC 61-passenger bus. The district has budgeted funds for the purchase of a smaller passenger van to replace it.

CRIME HOT SPOT — The 7-11 store at 3834 Massachusetts ave. has had ample share of robbery, shoplifting and burglary. Saturday night another would-be hold up man was shot and killed by store owner Ray Hollings. It was the second time Hollings fatally wounded a robber in his store.

Stickup Man Killed In L.G. 7-11 Store

A single shot from a shotgun killed a would-be robber Saturday night as he attempted to hold-up a Lemon Grove 7-11 store at 3834 Massachusetts ave., according to a sheriff's department report.

The man was slain by the store's owner, Ray A. Hollings, 47, who observed Irvin F. Jackson, 27, point a simulated concealed weapon at Sheri Lee Bebe, 22, the store's clerk, about 10:30 p.m. saying "This is a robbery."

He told the clerk he had a gun and demanded that the store's money be placed in a bag.

Hollings, from a hidden position in the store's attic opened fire. Jackson stumbled out of the store and collapsed on the store's parking lot. The "gun" turned out to be a screwdriver, a witness said.

Two hours earlier two women entered the store, records show, and pilfered several items from the shelves. The same clerk, Sheri Bebe, was unable to stop the two black females—they were in their early 20's—but she got a license number.

Records show that on February 9, a sheriff's helicopter aided in capturing two men who were attempting to burglarize the store.

On December 22, 1973, a stickup man was shot by Hollings during a holdup attempt. The robber died in the hospital.

Kenrick Knocks Sign Ordinance

The five-year abatement period on flashing and revolving signs in the unincorporated area will be cut back to one year if the Board of Supervisors accepts a recommendation made by the County Planning Commission.

The changeover could be accomplished in one year by changing a flasher bulb or pulling a plug, County staff members reported after conferring with representatives of the sign industry.

Walt Kenrick, one of two candidates for 2nd District Board of Supervisors (against Lucille Moore) issued a statement strongly opposing the cut-back.

"Such a drastic cutback will result in inverse condemnation damage costs to taxpayers," Kenrick said. "Courts ruled such cutbacks are unreasonable and it is likely that suits will be filed. Such cutback is sheer nonsense. The money could better be used in trimming county operational costs."

"If the amendment is adopted, the one-year abatement for other types of signs will be required to start over again. If a revised abatement period is established, it should be made a part of a separate ordinance because of the challenge likelihood," he said.

San Diego Taxable Sales Sets Record

Taxable sales in California soared to an all time high first quarter total of $18.6 billion, 15.6 per cent higher than during the first quarter of 1975, according to Iris Sankey, Member, State Board of Equalization.

In San Diego a first quarter record was also established with taxable sales up 14.8 per cent.

The most impressive gains were made in sales of durable goods. Sales of mobile home and trailer dealers rose by 50.9 per cent.

For dealers in lumber and building materials, sales increased by 45.6 per cent. Do-it-yourselfers are said responsible for increases in this category. Surprisingly, the San Diego increase was only 33 per cent.

Ten other business categories, eight of which sell durables, increased their sales by more than 20 per cent.

One workshop, titled "Working with Alcohol-Abusing Families" will be headed by Larry Chamow, an alcoholism counselor.

He notes that the alcoholic is not the only person who needs help. The people intimately relating to the alcoholic share the hurt and confusion and sometimes need counseling and support.

Chamow says children of alcoholics often feel responsible for the inconsistent behavior in their home, and some non-alcoholic spouses unknowingly structure situations which perpetuate alcohol abuse.

"Mind & Body Dynamics in Treatment of Alcoholism" will focus on a series of exercises based on the principle that re-birth and revitalization of the "whole person are essential to full recovery from alcoholism.

Wilson Bryan Key, author of the popular book "Subliminal Seduction," will discuss in his workshop sessions the things you don't see in liquor and cigarette ads; things that sell you subconsciously.

Musical Sawman Makes Home in Lemon Grove

By John Kowalczyk

If one day you're in the vicinity of Datona st., Lemon Grove, and you hear the gentle strains of "Bye Bye Blackbird" or some such tune played on what might easily be mistaken for a Moog synthesizer, you have probably passed within earshot of one of Lemon Grove's newest musicians.

He is Tom Scribner, 77, who just moved down from Santa Cruz to take advantage of the "best climate on earth" and get away from an impossible rent situation.

Scribner is not just any ordinary senior citizen seeking warm weather in which to enjoy retirement.

The spry old man has kept company with the likes of ex-Beatle George Harrison, rock star Neil Young, CBS on-the-road newsman Charles Kuralt, Mike Douglas and a host of other well-knowns.

How does a former lumberjack keep such good company? The answer sits in a tattered black box. Inside is a saw. Not just any hardware store kind, although there's only a slight difference, but a professional musical saw. Playing the instrument and others like it has filled the gaps in Scribner's lumbering life since he first picked one up in 1910. Today, he wants to make retirement more comfortable with it.

He and his ailing wife of 40 years moved from Santa Cruz, where his music had become almost legendary. Last year,

Charles Kuralt filmed an "On the Road" segment there featuring Scribner's unique skill at producing what is described as "the lost sound."

Two years ago Neil Young — of Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young fame — summoned him to record "Which Side Are You On," an old union song which appears on Young's "Homestead" album, just released.

On Thanksgiving last year, Scribner sat in with George Harrison and musician Larry Hosford and cut a single at Capital Records in Hollywood. The recording, "Crossword" or "Crossword Puzzle," (he can't recall the exact title), hasn't been released yet in San Diego.

In 1967, Scribner took his bow and saw to downtown Santa Cruz and started playing. The crowd that gathered around him went wild, he said. A group formed, aptly named "The Lost Sound," and before long they started doing gigs for senior citizens dances, TV shows and other occasions where nostalgia buffs gathered.

The town loved him so much that a group of fans threw a large farewell party for him just before he left. Last week, he received a letter from an artist who met him at the Santa Cruz sendoff. The fans, she wrote, wanted to send her down to shoot some pictures of him as a prelude to a flattering project — a life-size bronze statue of Scribner playing the saw.

FORGOTTEN SOUND — Saw player Tom Scribner glides through a tune while demonstrating his style on the instrument. The artist is registered with the Musician's Union and can play hundreds of tunes on a 14-note scale.

Though the instrument sticks out of any musical group, Scribner insists it is not a soloing piece.

"It accompanies a piano. A piano doesn't accompany it," he said.

"The Lost Sound" started with one pianist and later expanded to include another.

While at Santa Cruz, Scribner taught a class in saw playing at UCSC. That lasted two years and faded with students' interests. "Most of them didn't want to study the instrument seriously," he said.

Scribner's professional saw playing goes back to 1914 when he joined the musician's union. He became a vaudeville performer for about six weeks in 1915 at the raw age of 16 and toured the country. But he quickly tired of the travel and hung up his show business career that same year.

What followed was 53 years working with timber up and down the coast. He was a "pond jockey," the lumberman who tends to logs in the pond where they are kept for cleaning and storage until sent to the mill. In 1948, a sawmill accident ended Scribner's other musical talent — the violin. He lost a finger, but it hasn't hampered his saw playing.

High rent — it shot up from $160 to $300 — and a desire for a better climate for his ailing wife brought him here. "I draw about $302 a month in social security," he said.

Plans for the future include finding an "old-time" piano player and forming a group in San Diego. His music centers around the "Gay Nineties," he says, "when everyone was either gay nor ninety."

He has more than 100 old tune titles etched on cards which identify the key at which other instruments must play to accompany the 14-note instrument.

What looks like a simple task is actually quite difficult and tiring. Scribner insists that crossing the legs is the only way to get a good grip on the saw, which helps produce a good, crisp tone. But most other saw players don't, preferring to move the right leg to vary the pitch.

How to Play

The saw player forms a hump in the blade, bending it and holding it steady with the left hand.

While some then use a hammer to produce the sound, Scribner scrapes a fiddler's bow along the smooth edge.

"You must remember to use the smooth side, not the teeth side," the old musician said. "Or you'll cut the bow all to hell." He added that he has been known to do just that when he was drunk.

He bows just beyond the apex of the hump, the point of greatest stress. The amount of stress in the bend determines the volume; the placement of the hump sets the pitch.

The constant tension required to produce the wining musical sound tires out the left hand after a while. That makes it an unpopular instrument. It took a big plunge in popularity in 1921 when the Hawaiian steel guitar was introduced. It produced a similar sound with much less effort.

Now the lost sound is coming back through the skill of Tom Scribner, one of the few remaining professional saw players. "There ain't more than 7 or 8 in the musician's union today," he guessed.

Scribner — usually bedecked in a derby, suspenders and red socks, his stage trademarks — promises to make the local scene as soon as things are settled at home and he finds an accompanist. He has already had one booking.

CMA Says Doctors Should Take Active Social Role

The doctor as a social activist, instead of the doctor limited to treating disease and looking through his microscope, will be the new leader in bringing better health to America, according to the California Medical Association.

"Where once physicians concerned themselves only with the germs of the body, today's medicine must concern itself with the germs of society — societal impediments to good health. And they range from smoking and alcohol abuse to bad air and unsafe workplaces," the federal government's "top doctor" said, commenting on an article he authored for a special issue on medicine and the quality of life in California Medical Association's Western Journal of Medicine.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare's assistant secretary for health, Dr. Theodore Cooper, said, "Medicine will have to expand its tradition of curing disease to one of active involvement in seeking to correct those things in society that make people sick."

Better living condition, better nutrition, more satisfying jobs — not just better-paying jobs — and less pollution of the environment were cited as among the concerns that should be the new focus of medicine.

"Doctors should not limit themselves at looking only at how to make people well, but also at what made them sick in the first place," he said.

For example, Dr. Cooper explained, the lunch programs in public schools are now experiencing financial difficulty across the country. One way that schools cut costs is by contracting with catering services.

"While this might make good economic sense and have the blessings of the school's accounting department, doctors ought to make certain that nutritional quality doesn't suffer in the process," he said.

"I am not suggesting that every physician become a social activist or an instant expert on the problems of the economy, community planning and education — not all of us are cut out for this. But I am suggesting that physicians, as a group, through local and state medical societies, not remain aloof from the very factors that are making our patients seek our help in the first place."

"Future advances in health will not come just from newer weapons and better skills against disease, but from a new perception by medicine of its role, that of a preventer of disease — a perception toward which we are beginning to move — and none too soon," Dr. Cooper concluded.

Moore is Club Rep. at San Mateo Seminar

Representing 1586 clubwomen in the state of California, Lucille Moore of 1702 Van et., El Cajon attended a regional seminar on community improvement this week in San Mateo.

Mrs. Moore is serving as Southern District Community Improvement Chairperson for the California Federation of Women's Clubs, and in that capacity is responsible for local programs of community improvement in cooperation with other community groups, public officials and private citizens.

The Community Improvement Program is co-sponsored nationally by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears, Roebuck and Co. The seminar, conducted with the cooperation of National University Extension Association, marks the beginning of a two-year program of community improvement, 1976-1978. Clubs affiliated with the General Federation of Women's Clubs competed for prizes which include a district award, a top state award of $400, and a top national award of $10,000 to be presented in 1978.

The seminar is one of five regional training sessions which focus on the CIP Action Plan.

Mrs. Moore is a member of the El Cajon Woman's Club. Also attending from this state is Walter H. Reese of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

S.D. Transit Routes Expand

Grossmont Junior College Says Bus Service Covers All Areas

Convenient public transportation to Grossmont College from all population centers of the Grossmont Community College District will be available for students this fall marking the first full year in which complete access to the college has been available. The primary source of public transportation to the college will be offered by San Diego Transit via bus route 54 and a number of interconnecting routes.

In commenting on the comprehensive public transportation, John Burdick, dean of student activities, said, "This popular service began in January 1976 in response to requests from both students and the public and through the cooperation of the San Diego Transit System, San Diego and the cities of El Cajon and La Mesa.

"This has been a great service to our students who might otherwise have been unable to reach the campus," commented Dean Burdick. "The availability of vehicle parking spaces on the campus particularly at the beginning of the semester, is severely limited and it is this factor alone which accounted for the popularity of the bus service. Some student in La Mesa or El Cajon may find the Dial-a-Ride service offered by these cities a convenient means of reaching the campus," he added in discussing the complete public transportation available to the campus.

Buses are scheduled for both day and evening operation. Out-of-district students attending Grossmont College by special permit can reach the campus from almost any part of the county from Rancho Bernardo to San Ysidro.

While complete information on bus routes can be obtained by calling the San Diego Transit System at 239-8161, local routes including 54 and 36 will provide service to Spring Valley. Lemon Grove has a number of routes including those connecting with 36, 90 and 16.

Students may purchase a $10 monthly student saver pass from the college bookstore at any time. Students planning such a purchase for August are advised to obtain their passes in advance of the registration for classes scheduled for August 17, 18 and 19.

Support Widespread for Jr. High Reform

Thirty-nine major organizations, including the League of Women Voters, The California Teachers Association and the California Congress of Parents and Teachers (PTA) have endorsed California's RISE plan for Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education.

RISE is the most far-reaching attempt to reform California's 1,750 junior and senior high schools in the past 60 years. Among other things, the reform would provide for more individualized instruction, greater community involvement with its schools and concentration on proficiency in English and mathematics. RISE grew from recommendations made by a 37-member commission that included businessmen, labor leaders, parents, students, teachers and administrators.

Dr. Leland Newcomer, superintendent of Grossmont Union High School District, headed that commission.

State School Chief Wilson Riles said the list represented one of the largest coalitions in California to unite behind a single education measure. "I'm pleased that such a large and diverse list of organizations is supporting this attempt to improve education for California's young people," Riles said.

Among others, the organizations represent businessmen, parents, teachers, students and school volunteers.

The list of endorsements also includes the Industry-Education Council of California, the Association of California School Administrators, the Los Angeles and Sacramento Urban Leagues, the Association of Mexican-American Educators, and nine major school districts, including Los Angeles, Fresno, Palo Alto and San Francisco.

RISE is embodied in legislation (SB 1737) authored by Senator John Dunlap, D-Napa. The bill has already cleared the California Senate and will be considered by the Assembly when legislators return to the Capitol in August after a summer recess.

Outcome of Road Trip May Tip Padres Finish

The San Diego Padres will put the wraps on their final extended road trip of the season by finishing up a three-game series with the Mets in New York and then heading on for visits in Montreal and St. Louis.

The Padres, engaged in a real dogfight with Houston, Atlanta and a late surging San Francisco for a third place finish in the National League's tough Western Division, will conclude the three-game series with the Mets with a single affair tonight. Following that, the club will make its final appearances of the season in Montreal and St. Louis.

San Diego will test the Expos in a doubleheader Friday and then wind things up with single games Saturday and Sunday. The twin bill on the 13th was necessitated by losing a May 4 game due to cold weather on the last trip into Canada. That makeup contest will leave only one more such contest on the books, as it stands now, for the Padres, that being an October 2 date at Los Angeles.

Then, to complete the swing, the Padres will meet the St. Louis Cardinals on August 16-17-18. The three meetings will be the final outings between the two clubs this season. The Pads will go into the series with a 3-6 mark against the Redbirds thus far and have a shot at the club's best ever seasonal effort against the Cards, a 5-7 slate in 1974. Oddly enough, in all of the other six seasons, the Padres have finished with identical 4-8 records.

The Padres will have a chance to get in a little rest the following road trip as the club will be idle August 19-20 before opening up an eight-game homestand on August 21 with New York followed by Pittsburgh and Montreal.

"If we can get through this entire road trip without any serious problems, then we should be in pretty fair shape for the final month and a half of the season," commented Padres skipper John McNamara. "Pitching has been a real headache for us the past few weeks, but we'll get a bit of a breather after that doubleheader with Montreal what with some open dates plus the fact we'll be able to bring up some of our minor league pitchers for some relief when their season is finished in early September."

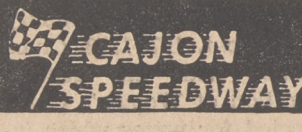

Registration Open For Amateur Hockey

Former Mariner's winger Wayne Rivers said that S.D. Amateur Hockey Assn. registrations are being accepted for the 1976-77 season at El Cajon Ice Palace on Saturday from 10:30 to 5.

Free skating will be available to those who register.

Out on the parking lot a swap meet will be conducted so that those who have outgrown equipment may exchange it with other players.

Registration is open for youngsters 6-20 years. E.C. Ice Palace is at 333 N. Johnson ave., El Cajon.

Golden Bears vs. Aztecs...in 1983

It's been a long time coming and the game is still down the road a bit but S.D. State U. will open the 1983 football season at home against the Golden Bears of U.C.

The Aztecs and Bears have never met in football and the game as it stands now is a one game package with a possible return.

"We're pleased to get the Golden Bears on our schedule," said Aztec Athletic Director Dr. Ken Karr. "I know 1983 sounds far away, but when you have the opportunity to schedule someone like Cal, you do it. I'm glad we could get the game in San Diego Stadium for our fans to enjoy seeing a fine PAC-8 team."

S.D. State has played Oregon State and UCLA of the PAC-8 with games against Washington State and Washington coming up in the next few years. The Aztecs played Oregon State as recently as last year, but haven't met UCLA since 1934.

Karr also announced that the Aztecs have signed home and home agreements with the U. of Tulsa and Nevada (Las Vegas). The Aztecs will meet the Golden Hurricane of Tulsa in San Diego in 1977, with the Aztecs in Oklahoma in 1980. The Aztecs and Nevada (Las Vegas) will play in San Diego in 1977 and in Las Vegas in 1978.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

I wanted to explain why I've been walking funny. It isn't because I've been drinking, which of course, I have. But the funny walking is the cause not the result.

The truth is, I'm sore all over. I hurt in places I didn't even know I had. My legs feel heavy, my feet hurt, my back is sore, my head still aches and my backside is so tender I mostly sit on pillows.

All because I wanted to be a good guy and help, then got too "chicken" to quit. It was dumb and now I wish I were numb. That's why I've been taking a nip every once in a while. It's just to ease the pain.

You remember how it started? I was helping Big John Elliott with his "Fighter Town Rodeo" out at Naval Air Station Miramar last weekend.

You know that none of the recreation facilities in the military are paid for with tax money and the riding ranch at Miramar and the golf courses there and at Admiral Baker Field, and the bowling lanes at the bases not only have to be self sufficient, but have to help pay for most of the other services available to service members and their dependents.

That's what the Miramar Rodeo was all about, really. Cowboys having fun doing their things and helping raise a few bucks for Miramar's Special Services. That's why I was out there, helpin' out.

And I should have left it at that. There was two days of rodeoin' over the weekend, but I got my hurts before it ever got underway.

We had a little press get together last Friday and John Elliott served up some hot ribs, cold beer and tasty chicken prior to the horse doings. And you know me, I haven't met a meal I didn't like.

You might know that Hope Hines of KFMB-TV sports show'd he can ride right along with working cowboys and allowed that he once almost rode a bull in rodeo competition. The rest of us didn't look so good, horsewise.

I was still sitting and holding on to a big ugly horse named "Headlight," standing still at the gate to the rodeo ring when the doings came to an end.

I figured if I didn't let the horse go anywhere, nobody would know what a tenderfoot I was. And I was wearing cowboy boots and a big hat. I must admit, I looked a lot better than I was. That's how the trouble started.

Just after Hines and the rest of the crowd left, a stable hand ran up and told Big John Elliott that three of the Brahman steers broke through the stock gate and had run off in the brush.

"Those are wild Mexican Brahman's," said Big John. "We'd better go get 'em. If they stay out there on the range more than a couple of days, there's no telling how wild they'd get. It could be we'd never get 'em back."

There are 14,000 acres of wild, rough, range land on Miramar Ranch with only a few dirt roads running from here to there. It's horse country.

Just as I was getting ready to climb down off old "Headlight," Big John barked, "All you fellows sittin' on a horse grab a rope and follow me."

Honest Boss. There was no way I could duck out. It was an "honest-to-God" round-up posse and I was caught up in it like a fish in a net. The riders took off trying to cut the run-away critters off at the pass and I clamped both hands on the saddle horn and bounced along after them.

Old "Headlight" jarred my fillings loose and backside numb about an hour before Big John called for a rest. I was breathing heavier than my horse and offered a silent prayer of thanksgiving for the halt.

"What'd you say?" asked one of the riders. I mumbled something about needing a cigar and he shoved a pouch under my nose. "Hav a chaw of real chewin' tobacco," he said and forced a ham fist size chaw into my mouth.

Headlight reared up and I clamped my hands back on the saddle horn in self defense and started chewing like hell. "Don't forget to spit downwind," said the rider as we galloped off into the brush.

"Cotton" Wright, of Spring Valley, was up in front with Big John, and Dave Betties, a sure-enough rodeo rider and horse trainer from Lakeside was beating the bushes on the other side. Dale Willets, a Miramar Ranch hand and a couple of retired CPO's John Nichols and Charlie Fletcher were spread out down the middle of our line. I was tail end Charlie. It took us three hours to corral them run away critters. I rode every minute of it, and somewhere along the line I swallowed my chewing tobacco. That's why I'm drinking and walking funny. And I figure it'll take me about three weeks to heal.

Parachutist Added to Corrida Sunday at Bullring by the Sea

Return of the daring Portuguese stuntmen, Los Forcados, and of the superb equestrian, Carlos Arruza, Jr., highlight the corrida for Sunday in the bullring by the sea, Plaza Monumental de Tijuana.

As an additional spectacle, one of the other matadors—Carlos Malaga—will open festivities by parachuting into the arena.

Activities will get under way at 4 p.m. with Malaga's jump. Then Arruza will fight his bull, which is shared for the Forcados to tackle.

Next will be the regular corrida featuring Jesus Solorzano Jr., Malaga, and Paco Santoyo. All seven bulls will be from the prestigious Casa Clanca ranch owned by Major Salvador Lopez Hurtado, who also owns the 22,000-seat arena.

The Forcados are sons of wealthy Portuguese and they fight for expenses only. One of the eight, Pedro Loureiro Jr., explained after their last appearance Aug. 1 that they are proving their nobility.

They do this by lining up single file. A different man is chosen each time to take the brunt of the bull's charge and wrap his arms around the beast's neck. The others then climb on and grab hold where they can. Finally, one grabs the bull's tail and is left alone with the irate animal.

Old Timers 'Un-Retire' For Cajon Oval Event

It'll be the Third Annual Old Timer's Night at Cajon Speedway Saturday night when the El Cajon Stock Car Racing Assn. superstocks return to the popular 1/4 mile asphalt oval.

Approximately 20 drivers should be coming out of retirement for a 10-lap race, which will be featured on the ten-event card. Early entries have been received from 1967 champion Vance Butler of La Cresta, Gil Stephens, Rudy Skulja, George Tripes, Chuck Minch, Don Manlow, Jim Bridges, Dave Greenwell, Jimmy Perez, Billy Harrell, Wilbur Saxton, and Ruben Carbellido.

But while these veterans of by-gone days will be having some fun, the 1976 superstock season at Cajon Speedway has become serious business for those currently battling for the 1976 title.

Leader is Lanny Pemberton of Lemon Grove, who has finished 12 of the 15 features this year. He holds a narrow lead over three-time champion Pat McIntyre of Spring Valley, the 1970 Champion Ed Hale of Lakeside and newlywed Gary Beecroft of Lemon Grove.

Only 320 points split the top eight drivers. A possible 245 points go to the winner of Saturday's 40-lap main event so another big shakeup in standings is possible.

The ten even card will get underway with qualifying at 6:30 Saturday. Only the fast twenty in time trials earn a starting position in the 40-lap feature and hence can get those valuable points. In addition to the feature and the Old Timer's race, a 20-lap semi, 10-lap consolation, four 8 lap heats and the trophy dash will be held.

Accidents Fail to Mar Racing Career of Ferro

The names of Parnelli Jones and Mickey Thompson appear first on the marquee, but the real super star of the 4th annual SCORE World Championships of Off-Road Racing August 22 at Riverside International Raceway may turn out to be Bobby Ferro.

The Sherman Oaks movie stunt driver will be going after the only major off-road racing victory that has eluded him, as well as his fourth straight win this season.

Ferro, the intense young scrapper who was "discovered" by actor James Garner and sent to race driving school, will drive a Sandmaster Hustler dune buggy on the 2.5-mile obstacle course against none other than Jones and Thompson plus at least half a hundred other drivers of single-seat dune buggies.

Near Death
Nobody could have predicted last November that Ferro would be on a winning streak at this time, because then he was lying near death in a hospital, the result of a skiing accident. It was feared that if he lived his racing career would be over.

That wasn't Ferro's game plan at all. When he woke up after coming out of a 10-day coma, he demanded, "Let me out of here," threw a bedpan at a nurse and walked out, notwithstanding his fractured skull and injury to his back, thought to be immobilizing.

His comeback ride came in the Laughlin 300, when he finished second. Since then the victory parade has been his first-ever win in the Mint 400 and Baja Internacional and a repeat in the Firecracker 250. Not one with a reputation for caution, Ferro said he has been driving much more carefully since his skiing accident. The man who is noted for passing dune buggies in Baja by leaping over them as often as he drives around them is said to have developed a new smoothness that if anything has made him even faster.

Crash & Roll
Ferro, however, has had no success worth bragging about at Riverside. In the first SCORE race he missed the starting grid because a day earlier he crashed and rolled during practice. His Sandmaster buggy cartwheeled so far that Ferro blacked out, and when he came to he was on the shoulder of the Palm Springs Freeway outside the raceway grounds.

The 28-year-old former desert motorcycle racing champ and decorated Vietnam veteran doesn't regard Riverside as a "jinx" track any more than the elusive Mint 400 win an impossible task. As far as he is concerned, if nothing goes wrong with his dune buggy, the packed grandstands of Riverside will cheer him in the winner's circle and not anyone by the name of Parnelli or Mickey.

Aztec Grid Preview To Return to Air

After an absence of several years the San Diego State football team will be featured in a half-hour weekly television show this fall.

The 30 minutes is being billed as "Aztec Preview" and will air on Saturdays on KFMB-TV Channel 8 at 4:30 p.m. and will feature Aztec coach Claude Gilbert and be hosted by the Voice of the Aztecs Ron Reina.

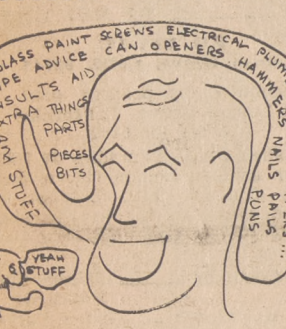

The show will hilt the previous week's game (7-10 minutes) and center on the upcoming opponent.

Taped interviews of the opposing coach and film clips of his outstanding players will be featured. Gilbert will also analyze the upcoming opponent.

VOICES AND THE ENGINEER — Bob Chandler and Jerry Coleman with radio Engineer Jorgensen in back.

Radio Voices Take Lumps Seldom Heard by Listeners

By Max Goodwin

Some sports reporters would have you believe they are omnipotent.

Close inspection shows it's hand-made job.

So aware of this self-appointed importance are they that a self imposed pecking order exists. Speak to his majesty without acquiescence and face the embarrassment of being snubbed.

But take him out of his cocoon and observe a frustrated jock, hungry for the attention he attracts when he is identified with his written piece, his voice on the air, or his face on the screen.

... when some sports reporters let their egos hang out, there is no space in that room for anyone else," an extremely wise man once said — though I can't for the life of me remember when I first said it.

Thank heaven for the other kind — the likeable ones; the nice guys of the profession. They present no deified facade. They're as approachable as the family puppy and as comfortable as the corner easy chair. They add something to their profession rather than to diminish it. In this category are two of most people's favorites: Bob Chandler and Jerry Coleman, voices of the San Diego Padres.

Respect Earned

Those who may not like that pair, simply don't know them. Talk to them and you respect them. Their baseball knowledge is deep and accurate. Equally important is the welcome feeling they impart. You'll never have to apologize to that pair for taking their time. You don't take it — they give it. Willingly.

Both are family men. Coleman is blessed with a wife and two children. Chandler's wife has blessed him with four daughters.

Six World Series

Coleman was in six World Series with the Yankees for whom he toiled 8 years. He was "Rookie of the Year" (1949). He made the All-Star squad (1950). In 1950 he also won the Babe Ruth Award as the Year's Outstanding Player. Primarily a second baseman, he also starred at third and short.

Chandler has been deep in sports behind camera and mike for 14 years. His experience in sports journalism somewhat matches Coleman's stardom on the diamond.

Chandler was the Padres

Cyclist Wins $11,670

Besppectated Steve Baker, a slight 23-year old from Bellingham, Washington, scooped up the lion's share of the $60,000 prize fund from the West Coast's richest motorcycle race, the Champion Spark Plug Motorcycle Classics staged at Laguna Seca Raceway, in Monterey July 31 and August 1.

Baker, a team rider for a Canadian Yamaha distributor, took home a cool $11,670 for a weekend's work that comprised a double win in both the main Formula 750 Championship event and the supporting 250cc Lightweight race.

Baker was never headed all weekend.

He won his qualifying heat and both 60 mile segments of the main F750 race and took both heat and main event victories in the Lightweight category.

TV announcer during the team's first two seasons Sports Director

He held the post of sports director on KCST TV 39; conducted various sports shows and did pro football and pro basketball play-by-play; reported college football play-by-play and big and little golf tournaments swing-by-swing. For 10 years he delivered nightly broadcasts for both KOGO TV 10 and KSTV 39.

He began his career as newsreel photographer for KFMB TV 8. He holds a BS Degree from S.D. State in broadcasting.

Coleman's career was interrupted twice by military service. He flew a total of 120 missions in WWII and the Korean Conflict. He holds two Distinguished Flying Crosses, 13 Air Medals and three Navy Citations. He retired from the Marine Corps with the rank of Lt. Colonel.

Electronic Hazard

In spite of exposure to hazards in the air and the excitement of appearing before millions of baseball fans during his 9 year baseball career, he all but fainted from pressure on his first coast-to-coast baseball broadcast.

He was interviewing Red Schoendienst on ABC TV network. At the time Schoendienst was an infielder with the Pirates in 1945. For some unknown reason, the show's director started the countdown an incredulous five minutes instead of the usual 10 seconds before tube time. There sat Coleman and Schoendienst staring at each other across a small table as the director tolled off the time in 10 second segments. Tension grew in Coleman.

"Ten seconds is enough for a countdown. But five min-

Bus Schedule for Padre Ballgames

San Diego Transit will be providing bus service to all San Diego Padre games played at the Stadium until season ends. Stadium specials will commence service at 5:30 p.m. for all games starting at 7 p.m. and at 11:30 a.m. for all games scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

Games for which full stadium service will be provided:

August 20, New York, game time 7 p.m.

August 22, New York, game time 1 p.m.

August 23, 24 and 25, Pittsburgh, game time 7 p.m.

August 28 and 29, Montreal, game time 7 p.m.

August 29, Montreal, game time 1 p.m.

Local riders can board stadium specials at the College Grove or Grossmont shopping centers.

The stadium fare of 50 cents a trip enables riders to travel from any point on San Diego's transit system, changing where necessary to connect with a stadium special.

utes! My head reeled. I felt faint. I had the 'vapors'. I was thinking it would be an awful time to become nationwide dumbstruck," Coleman said.

Almost Ended

"Just as the director said 'you're on', everything seemed to fall into place. Luckily, I didn't have to do much prodding to get Schoendienst to talk. Once it got started it went off just fine. But my broadcast career almost ended that night!"

On another occasion he was interviewing "Sad Sam" Jones. Sam, now dead, had pitched for Cleveland and Chicago but had been acquired by the Padres. Sam was noted for keeping a toothpick in his mouth both in games and out. Coleman thought the toothpick would be interesting for his listeners, so he started off with the question "Sam, why do you keep a toothpick in your mouth?"

"Because I like it," said Sam with finality.

That sort of limited the interview. It didn't get much better. Coleman says it was one of his poorer shows.

Sound of Patriotism

Chandler has his share of problems, too. When the Padres were playing at the first baseball facility in Mission Valley, Chandler had the speakerboard lineup chore. He would interrupt the announcement during the playing of the National Anthem. One night it started! Over Chandler's earphone — and the airwaves — came some gosh-awful, hog-calling type noises throughout the playing of the Anthem. This happened night after night. It took Tommy Jorgensen, the radio broadcast engineer to locate the source.

The walling came through a microphone for picking up crowd sounds. It was attached to the net in front of the stands. An elderly geezer who always occupied a seat adjacent to the mike joined in the singing with a fervor. His voice was awful. But he sang with gusto so that he could enjoy his voice via a transistor radio he held to his ear. The mike was moved!

Well, You Know

In 1972 Chandler was conducting a five minute interview with Johnny Jeter, then a Padres outfielder. Not all athletes are as articulate as sports announcers and Jeter always sprinkled his conversation with "you know."

His teammates were listening on the clubhouse radio. One of the players, a statistician by nature, clocked Jeter. Jeter tossed in "you know" 102 times. It still stands a record.

On another occasion when Chandler was doing the post-game show which is conducted in the players' lockerroom, he suffered a touch of humiliation at the hands of Danny Friesella, then a Padre pitcher and in-residence pixie.

Well Undressed Man

Knowing that Chandler would be immobilized with a mike in one hand and a sheaf of papers which included stats, notes and commercial break schedules in the other, Friesella solemnly unbuckled Chandler's belt and pulled his britches down around his ankles. "Lockerroom interviews aren't easy to do in under-shorts," Chandler noted.

Chandler could lead the Padre organization in optimism about the team's future. Once, during the darkest hours of 1974; when all effort to save NBL baseball in San Diego had failed, and Buzzie Bavasi was packing office records to move the defunct Padre franchise to Washington, I ran into Chandler at a sports function.

"Bobby," I asked, "what have you got lined up for this summer?"

"I'm going to announce for the Padres," he said with conviction.

You know the rest. Along came Ray Croc and saved the team for San Diego.

He also saved for local sports fans two of the finest gentlemen in sports announcing, anywhere.

Lopez KO's Hafey in 7 In Brutal Forum Fight

The referee stopped the fight in the 7th round of a 12 round featherweight elimination contest Friday night between San Diego's slugging featherweight Art Hafey and Danny (Little Red) Lopez of Los Angeles.

A crowd of 7,850 watched in Inglewood's Fabulous Forum as Lopez used his superior reach to keep Hafey's power from becoming effective. When it did, Lopez' head bounced.

It was Hafey's highest plateau since coming to San Diego from British Columbia five years ago.

Lopez won the right to take on Davis Kotey, of Ghana, World Boxing Council featherweight champion. A dispute immediately arose in the Lopez camp regarding the site of the fight. Lopez handlers do not want to fight in Ghana.

Hafey connected with some looping rights and lefts — but not in combination. As a matter of fact, his combinations were non-existent. Although his reach was considerably shorter than his opponent's, he chose not to move in close. When he leaned forward to try to reach Lopez from a distance, Lopez powdered him about the head.

Hafey won the first round and lost the rest until the fight was stopped at 56 seconds of the 7th round. He had already been knocked down in the 6th and was bleeding from the nose, mouth and a cut over his left eye.

It was a brutal fight with both battlers taking severe punishment in the early rounds.

Hafey now has a 57-84 record; Lopez is 31-3 with 30 won by knockouts.

Kotey won the championship from Ruben Olivares September 20, 1975.

Chargers Tokyo Game -- 2:30 A.M.

If you want to hear the Chargers game from Tokyo you'll be tuning in at 2:30 a.m. Monday. It will be broadcast live on KSDO radio — starting at 2:30 a.m.

Kickoff at Tokyo's 43,000-seat Korakuen Stadium is 6:30 p.m. Tokyo time.

It'll be the Chargers longest road trip and the first NFL overseas game when they face the St. Louis Cardinals there.

The Chargers will not return to San Diego until the following week. They'll stay overseas to play a Saturday game against the San Francisco 49ers at Hawaii in Honolulu's new Aloha Stadium on August 21.

Victorious in their first two preseason games, coach Tommy Prothro and his players greet the trip with enthusiasm.

"The trip will break the monotony; a training camp can become awfully monotonous," said Prothro. "Maybe we'll get more work done in a shorter time."

Center Ed Flanagan, the team's elder statesman with 12 years NFL experience, takes a truly diplomatic approach:

"The trip is a great thing. It's good for the guys, good for the team and good for the relationship between the countries. Eventually there will be NFL teams in Hawaii, Mexico City and maybe even Japan. Sports can do a lot of things for good relations that can't be done in other areas.

"We'll have a new slogan. Join the NFL and see the world!"

Breakers Face Sol Here Friday

The Breakers may mix wrestling with volleyball with the return of El Paso-Juarez Sol to the Sports Arena Friday night at 7:30.

Last month, player coach Rudy Sawara engaged the Sol team and its owner in a temper flareup. Three of the contestants were ejected from the game.

Friday has been designated Women's Bank Night; free pantyhose night—for the women, and a drawing for a free trip to Lake Tahoe.

The 1976 All-Media Volleyball match is also programmed with the KGB chicken as referee.

Only two home games remain after Friday.

Champ Lujan Meets Mike Mesa On S.D. Coliseum Fight Card

Boxing returns to the Coliseum Friday at 8 p.m. with Manny Lujan, State featherweight champion (28-2-1) going in a 10-round match against Miguel Mesa who gave the champ a close decision on the Kenny Norton card at the Arena July 10.

Lujan won his title from Juan Yberra in San Francisco two months ago.

Lujan will be just over the featherweight weight limit so the crown will not be on the line. But Mesa, if he learned anything from the July fight, may beat Lujan Friday.

Mesa is former national amateur champion of Mexico who has won over 30 fights since turning pro.

Joe DeBaker will meet Manuel Castellano in a 6-round junior lightweight match.

Two other bouts will round out the program.

ITA Indoor Meet Tickets on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the I.T.A. professional track meet slated for Friday evening, August 20, at the Sports Arena. Tickets are $6, $5, $4, and $3 and are available at the Arena ticket office, Bill Gamble's Mens Stores, Montgomery Wards and all Arena ticket outlets. Parking will be free.

The only man to put the shot 75/0, Brian Oldfield, will be appearing at the meet along with Steve Smith, the pole vaulter. Steve was history's first 18-foot indoor vaulter.

Events for the meet will include the mile and two mile runs; 60 and 100 yard dash, 440 and 880 yard runs, high hurdles, high jump and long jump; and of course the shot put and the pole vault.

Return to High Speeds Spells Death, CHP Says

The CHP Commissioner has determined that returning to the 65/70 m.p.h. speed limit on highways would cause an additional 300 traffic fatalities a year.

Glen Craig, Highway Patrol commissioner, said statistical projections indicated that a return to faster speeds on freeways would raise the death toll.

In addition, Craig said, there would be an increase of 4,000 traffic accident injuries annually in California. He said it was estimated that returning to the speed limit in effect in 1973 would result in additional gasoline consumption of 300 million gallons a year.

The CHP Commissioner said, "While many motorists on rural freeways and highways are exceeding the 55 mile speed limit, traffic is moving slower than it used to and there has been a significant reduction in the average speed.

"In fact the decreased speed has resulted in a more compact cluster of travel speeds than in previous years. As a consequence, the frequency of high speed drivers overtaking moderate or slower drivers has been substantially reduced and the speed differential between vehicles is less."

Craig added, "The lower speed limit and compaction of the 'cluster effect' are directly related to reduced collision frequency and severity. These two factors resulted in an estimated savings of 600 lives and 8,000 injuries during the last two years (1974-75) in California.

'Gun Blows Keep Falling ...' And Burglar Escapes with Loot

John Gregory Hook, thought it strange to find a car parked in his driveway when he arrived home August 4 with one of his fellow workers Rancy Michael Breece.

Once inside his residence, at 8460 Dexter ave., he knew why. There, with some of his household items stacked on a couch, stood a black male, 27-38 years of age, 5'-8" and about 180 pounds.

An electric can opener, lamp, 1/2 gallon of ice cream and other items were in the pile. The suspect apparently realized that one of the two might be the legal inhabitant, so he pushed the pair aside and rushed out to his car.

Hook, following him, saw

Coast Guard Warns Fishermen of New Mexican 200-Mile Boundary

The Coast Guard cautions U. S. boaters and fishermen entering Mexican waters that the government of Mexico now exercises exclusive control over fishing in the waters within 200 miles of the Mexican coastline. Formerly, the government recognized a 12-mile limit.

The 200-mile limit was recognized after July 31, the Coast Guard reported.

Mexican law had been based on the same principle of international law under which the U. S. controls fishing within twelve miles of our coastline.

Sportsmen, Too

The Mexican law, which applies to sports fishing as well as commercial fishing, provides, among other things, that any vessel fishing within the twelve-mile exclusive fishing zone must possess a permit issued by the Mexican government. Anyone who wishes to fish within Mexico's exclusive fishing zone must check with the Mexican government before doing so.

The maximum penalty for violating the Mexican law is a hefty fine of $24,000 plus forfeiture of any fish and fishing gear on the offending vessel. Also, the vessel may be detained until the fine is paid. Any U. S. vessel fishing within twelve miles of a Mexican coastline (including offshore islands) can expect to be boarded and inspected for compliance with Mexican fishing laws.

If found in violation of the law, the boater can expect to be arrested and taken into a Mexican port.

Fishermen about to be arrested by Mexican authorities should radio the Coast Guard and give name, position, vessel name, home port and Mexican port to which they may be taken.

No Help

The Coast Guard will not interfere with the enforcement effort by the Mexican authorities and cannot protect the boater from arrest. But it will monitor the situation and keep the U. S. Embassy in Mexico City informed. The Embassy will, as appropriate, assist U. S. boaters and fishermen who have been arrested.

But the only way to avoid trouble is to comply with the Mexican law.

If a violent act is committed against any person or vessel, Mexican or United States punishment may be severe.

15 Propositions Faced By Voters in November

15 measures will be on the state ballot on the November 2 election, according to Senate Pro Tem James R. Mills. Two measures result from successful initiative petitioning (petition passing). These are a dog race betting proposal and a revamped farm labor relations issue.

The other 13 were ordered by the Legislature. The propositions:

1 — $500 million in state bonds for housing.
2 — $375 million in bonds to buy and restore parks and historical sites.

3 — $25 million in bonds for loans and education on solar heating and insulation.

4 — Bans denying a person admission to any U. of Cal. department on the grounds of race, religion or ethnic heritage. Also tightens control of university bidding methods.

5 — Permits increase in interest rates on business loans.

6 — Gives the governor more time to sign or veto new legislation.

7 — Renames Commission on Judicial Performance and requires two attorneys to serve on commission.

8 — Allows combinations of non-chartered counties to establish a joint county board of education.

9 — Requires legislative OK when the governor fills a vacancy as lieutenant governor or other major constitutional officer.

10 — Prohibits local governments from imposing a property tax without approval by voters.

11 — Permits the Legislature to adjust rates on unsecured property to maintain equality between property tax rates on secured and unsecured rolls.

12 — Permits the Legislature to provide loans to finance installation of insulation or solar heating or cooling systems in residences. (See 3)

13 — Legalizes racing greyhound betting.

14 — Gives union organizers greater access to growers' property.

15 — Amends a 1922 initiative on chiropractors' licensing.

Air Board Happy Over Volvo Anti-Pollute System

The State Air Resources Board is encouraged by news that Volvo has developed a nearly pollution-free automobile, to go on sale in California later this year.

The pollution control system, which costs an affordable $25 to $50 a car, is described by ARB chairman Tom Quinn as a "three-way" catalytic converter.

It is the "most significant breakthrough ever achieved" in the fight to obtain clean cars, Quinn said. The new development shows that the automobile can be nearly eliminated as a major cause of smog within the next decade, he said.

The new model is 10 times cleaner than cars sold in most of the nation and nearly seven times cleaner than current California models.

Quinn said most manufacturers have developed systems which meet California's new standards with a slight fuel economy improvement, but Volvo has exceeded the state's requirements by a wide margin.

The ARB chairman said it might take several years for all manufacturers to adapt the new control system to their cars and he recommends a five-year phase-in schedule for more stringent emissions control.

Fewer Foreign Cars Imported; Tourists Sales Drop 81 Per Cent

Fewer foreign cars are being brought into California by U. S. citizens, the State Board of Equalization reported this week.

The total plunged downward by 81.7 per cent between 1972 and 1975, BoE reported.

The decline in numbers was from 12,000 to 1,100. The 1976 figures indicate the decline is continuing.

An example of how this happened is the rise in consumer prices in West Germany of 22 per cent while the mark increased from 31.4 cents to 40.7 cents (U.S.), or about 30 per cent. The combined effect pushed the cost of German vehicles up more than 50 per cent U. S. money.

The price differential that used to make German vehicles attractive has been wiped out.

Japanese vehicles, however, have become more attractive partially because the Japanese yen has about the same value today in U. S. currency as it had in 1972.

High hotel and restaurant prices have influenced the traveling patterns of American tourists. More people are choosing the all-inclusive package tours instead of buying cars and touring by themselves before shipping the vehicles home.

EASY WRITER — Residents in the vicinity of Nichols st. in Lemon Grove were puzzled by the overnight appearance of three instances of spray-painted graffiti on a garage door and sidewalks. The number "13" was common to all and two sites bore the initials "L.G." While the words "Get High" were sprayed on one sidewalk slab, another bore the inscription "T." One resident said children in the neighborhood insist the "13" stands for the 13th letter of the alphabet, "M", which in turn stands for marijuana. That explains the "Get High" reference but leaves the "T." unexplained. One far fetched answer: The perpetrator wanted to write a message protesting the complexities of modern life, but gave up when he discovered he couldn't spell "the".

'Operation Etch' Renewed for CB's

Sheriff's reserves and deputy explorers will again engage in etching owners' drivers license numbers on CB units, but this time they will be joined by the El Cajon Police Department.

The public service program will be conducted 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, at the Sheriff's Lemon Grove Station, 7859 Broadway, the Santee Station, 8811 Cuyamaca st., and the El Cajon Police Station, 100 Fletcher parkway.

The service is an outgrowth of the sheriff's "County

Mountie" program in which detectives in the East County have CB units installed in their official cars to help prevent CB thefts and to communicate with CB operators.

A major method of preventing thefts and aiding in recovery of stolen property, the engraving service was done at all sheriff's stations on July 17. The response was so great that the service is being repeated, August 14.

El Cajon police, also plagued by SB thefts, will perform the same engraving service.

A Look at Past Issues

Back Pages

A look at the pages of this newspaper twenty years ago reveals some of the interesting contrasts between then and now. This column highlights some of the items that appeared in this newspaper at this time two decades ago.

By Bruce Binkowski

School construction in the Spring Valley-Lemon Grove area was in full gear two decades ago. This "remember when" column has reported on the building of several schools that are now fixtures in the area that were built in 1956. August of that year another was slated for construction.

Building of the new Bancroft School was awarded to O. L. Carpenter of Lemon Grove, who was the low bidder to erect the complex. Bids were directed to the La Mesa-Spring Valley school district which reported the building "would start in the very near future and should be completed by next spring, eliminating double sessions."

A motor vehicle "grounding law" enacted by the state legislature in 1955 was put into effect the summer of 1956. The law was part of the state's effort to protect the motoring public from damages suffered in accidents that may be caused by financially irresponsible drivers and owners operating on the highways.

Paul Mason, state director of motor vehicles, issued a reminder to all motorists that failure to observe the accident reporting, financial responsibility and security posting requirements of the California Vehicle Code may result in the suspension of a car owner's vehicle registration, license plates, as well as suspension of the driver's license.

A letter received by a Lemon Grove resident from a friend living near the principality of Monaco offered interesting insight into the popularity, or at that time, the lack of same of Prince Ranier and his brand new wife, Princess Grace (Grace Kelly, former American movie star). The following are several selected notations from this article which is a reprint of a personal letter carried in the August 16 edition of the Review/Bulletin.

"The sad truth is that the 'marriage of the year' is not bringing all the things bright and beautiful that the 20,000 people of Monaco hoped for. They hoped their lovely 'swan like' princess would be seen around in public. No one in Monaco has seen the lovely princess, except a chosen few Americans and Sir Winston Churchill. They hoped their serene highness would visit that hospital and the orphanage. But nobody there has seen Kelly."

"A friend of mine talked to an official in the information section of the principality and tactlessly asked 'What is the feeling of the people here toward the new princess?' In reply the official closed his eyes, looked up at the ceiling and threw up his arms like a frantic appeal to an umpire—but said nothing. When the question was repeated, the official replied, 'M'sieu—I can say nothing. I will tell you all about the town, about the current exhibitions and our famous display of German are—or better still, take this guide booklet free, but I know nothing about the princess.'"

"Another friend of mine talked to a local policeman. 'Is Monte Carlo pleased with its new princess?' He gave a French shrug, (one shoulder up, eyes closed). 'Pouf,' he puffed, which is a pretty straight answer, you'll have to admit from a Frenchman."

A footnote to the Princess Kelly story: That same month in 1956 Monaco announced that Princess Kelly was expecting a baby. By the way, the marriage has withstood the test of time and one can only assume the natives of Monaco in August of 1976 are well pleased with the royal family.

Property Tax Aid for Seniors

State representatives will be in the San Diego County area to help senior citizen homeowners file claims for Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Law benefits, according to Donald Whitney, director of the Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Program.

Partial reimbursement of 1975-76 property tax is available to senior citizen homeowners with limited income. Claimants must be a California resident as of January 1, 1976, own their home between July 1, 1975 and June 30, 1976, be 62 years or older as of January 1, 1976, and have a total household income of $10,000 or less.

Almost 301,000 claims were paid last year for a total of $50.8 million, Whitney said. The average amount paid was $169.

The amount reimbursed is based on the total amount of property tax paid and the household income of the claimant, Whitney explained. Payments can range from 4 per cent to 96 per cent of the property tax paid.

Claim forms will be available at the temporary offices or may be obtained from any Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance office or by writing to Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance, P.O. Box 1588, Sacramento, 95807.

A temporary office will be in operation on August 19 at Norman Park Center, 270 "F" st., Chula Vista. Assistance will be provided 9-4 on that date.

The deadline for filing claims this year is August 31, 1976, but claimants are urged to file early. Payments begin in early July and are paid in the order received.

CdO Restaurant Lease Negotiated

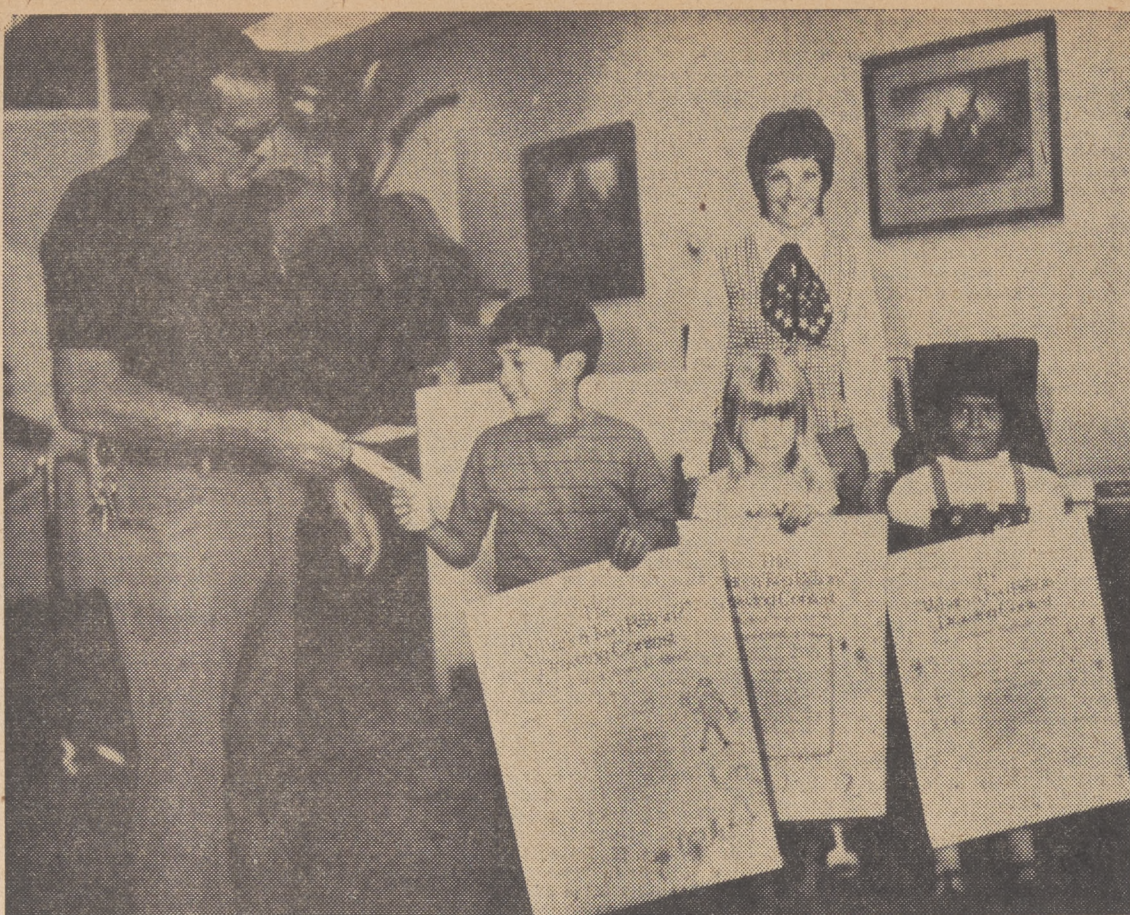

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kaye of Chula Vista, doing business as Jimmy's Family Restaurants, have signed a 25-year, $750,000 lease for 4,620 sq. ft. of space in Casa de Oro in a transaction negotiated by Coldwell Banker Co.

The lease, which runs to the year 2000, covers the property at the southwest corner of Campo and Bonita rds., where the restaurant currently is in operation.

Forest Sup. to Move

The forest supervisor's office of the Cleveland National Forest is in a new location. The office has relocated to the new federal complex, 880 Front st., San Diego.

The office is on the sixth floor, southside of the building, Room No. 6-S-5.

WHAT'S A TWO BILLION? — Spring Valley Home Federal Manager Carolyn Clune watches as gift certificates are presented to Albert Goycochea, Gracie Garcia and Cassandra Roberts, winners of a crayon drawing contest to answer the question "What's a two billion?"

The contest was held to celebrate Home Federal's reaching $2 billion in assets. The theme was designed to offer an unstructured challenge to children, ages six and seven, whereby they could use their imaginations to the utmost. Presenting Jack-in-the-Box gift certificates is Morrie Peterson, president of the Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Peacock Caper Continues

Two Birds Still at Large; Evade Animal Reg. Efforts

The Great Peacock Caper continued this week in Lemon Grove.

Two peacocks, at last reports, were still evading efforts of County Animal Regulation officers to capture them, according to Dave Boyd of the department.

The two fugitive fowl were spotted in the vicinity of Drew ln. late in July, were seen on rooftops of several homes on Orange pl. two weeks ago and were last spotted in the vicinity of 7851 Lincoln st.

Boyd said as many as three officers have been sent out at one time to try to capture the birds, but so far no one has been successful.

On one occasion, an off-duty San Diego Zoo employee tried to capture the duo with a net, but both birds evaded it.

Meanwhile, efforts to locate the owners of the pair have been unsuccessful. It is "very likely" that they were raised by a Lemon Grove resident, probably one who lives in the vicinity of Lincoln st., Boyd said.

"We think the owners might be happy to be rid of them," he said.

The birds may go down in history as two of the most unwanted fugitives in recent San Diego animal history.

Animal Regulation has contacted the San Diego Zoo, Sea World and the Humane Society. None of the three want anything to do with the birds.

No county regulations prevent a resident from raising or keeping the birds, Boyd said. The only citable offense, he says, would be their honking creating a public nuisance.

The birds are thriving on fruit, seeds, bugs and anything else edible in the neighborhood. "They're scavengers," Boyd said.

Experts say there are at least 300,000 kinds of seashells.

L.G. Care Center Asks Impact OK

San Diego County has received draft Environmental Impact Reports (EIR) for proposed projects in the Lemon Grove, Bonita, and Anza-Borrego Desert areas.

Christian Day Care of Lemon Grove proposes continued operation of the day care center at the First Baptist Church on the corner of Main street and Burnell avenue in Lemon Grove.

In Bonita, the Pap Smear Center Professional Building project proposes a rezoning of 3.63 acres from E-1-A (single family dwelling on a minimum of one and a half acres) to R-P (multiple dwelling such as a business office or hospital).

In the Anza-Borrego Desert, the Mason Valley Ranch Project proposes to subdivide 2,300 acres into 49 private recreational retreat lots, located along the Mason Valley Truck Trail adjacent to the Anza-Borrego Desert State Park.

The draft EIRs and Supplemental for these projects are available for review at the County of San Diego Environmental Analysis Division, 9150 Chesapeake drive in San Diego; Ecology Centre, 340 Kalmia in San Diego; and the Spring Valley and Lemon Grove Library.

SEE HOW THEY GROW — "Cecil" Telles reveals one of about two dozen giant tomatoes weighing three or more pounds each which were grown in his home garden.

Tomatoes Weigh In at 3 Pounds, Says Gardener

By John Kowalczyk

Narcosi "Cecil" Telles is another of many home garden success stories in Lemon Grove.

Cecil is harvesting about two dozen tomatoes this week from his small garden. There is nothing small about his crop, though.

The tomatoes will tip the scales at three pounds each.

Most who hear about the size, roughly seven or eight inches in diameter, and the weight have to see them to believe them, says the retired machine operator who turned to gardening three years ago.

Telles said a steady diet of water and fertilizer (steer manure) with occasional dusting for insects are the only care needed to produce the giant tomatoes. No other secrets, he says.

The amateur farmer and his wife have lived 37 years at their garden spot at 7984 Lester ave. They have six married children and ten grandchildren who help them eat what they are not able to can.

"They wipe me out," the gardener said.

Telles plants "a little bit of everything" in his 35 x 50 ft. home garden patch. Included are pumpkins, string beans, corn and a hotter-than-normal strain of hot peppers imported from New Mexico, rare in California.

The yard is also graced with flowering yucca plants, sunflowers, other varieties of plants and shrubbery and a towering rubber tree which many attest is the largest in the county.

It's a story told again and again in the area by home owners who are convinced this is truly "the best climate on Earth."
